

Naval experts reckon there are 9 major choke points in the international sea lanes where bad guys could badly influence world trade. A major prize - or at least recognition amongst your peers - to the first person to identify them correctly through the comments mechanism just below.